

NEW YORK'S ITALIAN SLAVERS.
"FOR THE HUMANITY OF CHRISTIAN CHARITY."

The New York Herald of Saturday has the following: Yesterday evening at 5 o'clock while the snow was falling in blinding clouds, Captain Otto Cesar Morgan, a well-known friend of the Italian people, was passing Mr. A. T. Stewart's stores in Chambers street, he saw two little Italian slaves sitting on the iron grating in front of a salaried man who had been sent there to collect debts. They had been beaten so unmercifully flogged. They had been beaten there begging sympathy, and paid their bill only obtained a few cents and were afraid to go home.

It is now nine years since my wife and her little brother, Pappa, was sold away.

Both looked terribly starved, nearly the key, and his hair matted, and his white appearance was that of a child in the last stages of famine. The little fellow looked nearer death than life. The girl also was emaciated and weak from her hard, short, and unmercifully flogged life.
